Introduction to Technical Information

OVERVIEW

The information presented on the project website is based on the initial conceptual design. Please note that the concepts evolved and changed between respective tasks and are currently at a conceptual (not final) level. This is particularly important to consider when looking at the conceptual engineering drawings. It may be possible to adjust portions of conceptual route options by hundreds or possibly thousands of feet from where they are currently shown. These initial conceptual alignments should not be considered as “final”, and future modifications will be expected as the options are further evaluated throughout the environmental process.

The information presented in this section of the website includes technical data from Tasks 3 through 6. Note that Task 1 was related to administrative activities, and Task 2 was related to outreach activities. Summaries of the outreach activities are included in a separate section of this website.
